

More About Ancestry's New Pro Tools December 2023

Revised 12-15-23

VIDEO LINK

This is an update with Crista Cowan, Corporate Genealogist at Ancestry. In her interview (see the video) she gave some clarification and additional information about the new Pro Tools currently available to U.S. Ancestry members.

This Just In...

Ancestry has some new ProTools tools rolling out across the U.S. as of 12 December 2023. Some things have changed since the previous episode about these tools (in early December). Previously the Ancestry team had told me that Fan Chart would be part of your regular subscription and some of that has not changed. What has changed is the ability to expand to the different generations, which is now part of the new Pro Tools subscription.

New Pro Tools (Add-On Subscription)

You Tube

As of this writing, the cost to add Pro Tools is $9.99 per month (in the U.S.) in addition to your regular subscription. Please do not shoot the messenger.

FAN Chart (Tree View)

In a previous episode for December on Genealogy TV, I demonstrated the new Fan Chart on Ancestry. Shortly after that episode aired, they took down the part of the tree where you could expand the generations and migrated the generational expansion under the Pro Tools add-on subscription.

Ancestry says the new tools include:

GenealogyTV.org

GENEALOGY TV

- "Tree Checker: Enhance the accuracy of your family tree using the Tree Checker which identifies and suggests corrections for potential errors, refining and improving your family tree.
- Map Views: Gain deeper insights into your family's heritage with maps that show where ancestors came from and the social and geographical forces that shaped their lives and community.
- Insights: Simplify family tree research with user-friendly tools, offering over twenty-five filters and search options, like Military, Occupation, Immigration, and more, to swiftly locate your ancestors and gain meaningful insights into your family's history.
- Reports & Charts: Deepen your understanding of your family's history with reports, facts, and visuals, including various tree views like Registry, Ahnentafel, Descendancy, and more."

Tree Checker (a.k.a. Fact Checker)

Check for errors in your tree! While you would think this would be available in the tree view, it is only available in the profile view. I suspect they are going to change the name from Tree Checker to Fact Checker permanently.

Accessing the Tree Checker (a.k.a. Fact Checker)

Notes/comments	➤ Merge with duplicate	 	දී Member c	connec	Check facts PRO	L Charts & reports PRO

You can find it two ways in the Profile view and also from the Tree View under Find, then List of All People.

In the Profile View

- Tools Icon Under the wrench icon in the upper right corner, then drop down to Check Facts.
- You can also access it from the Research Tools Menu. If you are not seeing the Research Tools Menu, you can turn it on by going to the Tools (wrench) icon, drop down Clicking the Check Facts link will open up a side menu showing a potential error. You can also access the errors tool with the ! icon.

As you can see there is an ! near the top of the profile. If it has a dot on it that means, there are potential errors. Clicking that icon will also open up the side panel. No dot = no errors.

Seeing Potential Errors

Ancestor View

You can see All Possible Errors with the previously noted access through the profile view by clicking on the View All Possible Errors button will open a list of ancestors with possible errors. Currently, this is only visible if there are no errors for that ancestor. You can see All Possible Errors from the Tree View.

Nice work!

We didn't find any possible errors.

View all possible errors

Tree View

You can also access the "All Possible Errors" from the Tree view.

Click Find, List of All People, then if you are subscribed to Pro Tools, you should have a More Filters Button. From there, use the drop-down menus to add one or more filters. You can stack filters to refine your search.

Remember, these are people in your tree, so you are filtering the list of only those in your tree, not other trees as well.

This will allow you to filter to your paternal or maternal sides.

You can then add more filters such as adding a location. For example, perhaps you wish to filter to all people in your tree on your paternal side, who were born in Denmark.

Reports and Charts

From the Profile View on Ancestry, you will see another new Pro Tool. It is called the Charts & Reports tool.

Clicking the Charts & Reports tool allows for four reports to be created in two different document styles automatically set from the Profile ancestors you started from when clicking into the Charts & Reports.

Maps - Search Your Tree by Location

From the tree view, click on the tree icon, then again, if you have Pro Tools, you should be able to access the Map tool from here. This will show you clusters of your family lines.

Below, I have filtered my map to my Direct Line Ancestors.

Below I have unchecked the direct line ancestors from our previous search and filtered my entire family tree to those who have some reference to England.

Insights

Returning to the tree view, then Find, then All People, you can filter the list by so many different ways to help you dice your list of All People in to segments to refine your search. Here I have filtered my list to all those in North Carolina, on my Paternal line, who have Hints to explore.

Just pay attention to your filters. These are AND filters, not OR filters. So, in other words, these are people who lived in North Carolina AND are on my Paternal Side AND have Hints.

You could even refine this further to an era if you are looking for hints from this line for a specific time period. However, you could over filter yourself to the point you get no results.

Conclusion

While I realize that this is an additional monthly charge to your regular Ancestry subscription, I find these tools fun to play with and helpful in some situations. Are they worth $120 per year ($9.99 per month)? That is for you to decide. You certainly can achieve quality research results without these tools. I am merely providing information to you for your education and evaluation.
