Newspapers are some of the best resources for genealogist. They help tell the story that the records don't. Newspapers are all over the place. There is no one repository that has all newspapers. However, there are some better than others.

In newspapers you can find obituaries, marriage or engagement announcements, birth announcements, divorce

A good genealogist will also be looking for newspapers at the national, state, and local levels online and in person.

Most newspapers are not digitized, even today. Be sure to contact county > libraries and historical societies as they often have undigitized newspapers just waiting for you to see them.

Don't forget the family. Sometimes the only copy of an obituary is one the family saved. Look to online trees for these gallery uploads from family members.
